The University of Reading has a beautiful 130 hectare parkland campus to explore as well as three museums.

A WATERSIDE TOWN

Reading could easily be called Reading-on-Thames or Reading-on-Kennet as these two rivers have flowed through the history of the town from the Vikings to the arrival of the canals and modern-day Reading.

A gorgeous stretch of the Thames separates Reading town centre from its northern-most area, Caversham (see page 18). The riverbank is a 2-minute walk from Reading Station, where you can join the Thames Path National Trail. Christchurch Bridge is Reading's striking new pedestrian bridge, offering fantastic views in both directions – from the cascading Caversham Weir to historic Caversham Bridge, which celebrates its 100th anniversary in 2026.

Enjoy Reading-on-Thames

Thames River Cruise

Enjoy a circular boat trip to explore the Thames from Caversham Pier. Thames River Cruise is a family business that has been offering scenic river trips for over 50 years. Explore upstream to Mapledurham through Wind in the Willows country and spot river birds as you watch the world go by. Or why not try their Cream Tea Cruise or Sundowner Cruise.

Caversham Boat Services

You can start your Thames boating holiday in Reading or just hire a boat for the hour.

Thames Lido

A sedate watery experience is on offer at the restored Edwardian bathing pool. Swim, enjoy the sauna and a treatment or take advantage of the fabulous poolside restaurant. Book a package to make a day of it!

Whittington Tea Barge

Moored on the north bank of the Thames by Reading Bridge, the traditional barge offers one of the best Afternoon Teas around (Fri-Sun).

the town centre. Or Thames Canoe Hire offer a similar service from their base near Tilehurst to the west of Reading.

Walk the Thames

Reading has a lovely stretch of the Thames Path National Trail for those walking from 'source to sea'. Or just walk to Sonning or Pangbourne for a picnic or riverside drink.

Enjoy being by the water in Christchurch Meadows, with its popular summer paddling pool or explore Caversham Court Gardens, a historic garden that runs down to the Thames on the north bank of the river. In summer, they have lots of great events with a Thames backdrop.

Village Hotel NEW

Just opened, the Village Hotel offers bedrooms with river views as well as a Health and Wellness centre with pool, buzzing pub and grill, pilates studio and Starbucks.

On the Kennet

The River Kennet becomes the Kennet & Avon Canal (K&A) as it flows through Reading town centre passed Reading's Abbey Ruins, the start of the St James' Way and the former Reading Prison with its Oscar Wilde links. You can take narrow boat holidays on the K&A all the way to Bath from Reading.

Matildo Too

For a leisurely introduction to the K&A, board the Kennet & Avon Canal Trust's 12-seat narrowboat for a circular cruise around Reading.

Oracle Riverside

The canal flows alongside the Oracle Shopping Centre. Choose from its many eateries and cafes that overlook the canal. Take a seat on the terraces to enjoy the view.

Reading Riverside Museum

Reading Museum's small Riverside Museum at Blake's Lock tells the story of Reading's two rivers on the site of the former waterworks buildings.

Green Reading

Reading is a surprisingly green town with lots of parks, such as Forbury Gardens in the town centre, Palmer Park to the east and Prospect Park in the west. You can walk the green corridor from Tilehurst all the way into Reading town centre from park to park. If you follow the Thames east, Thames Valley Park is a popular picnic spot while Bugs Bottom in Caversham links the town with the Chilterns.

Lagoona Park – aqua park and paddleboarding centre close to Junction 11 M4.

Dinton Pastures Country Park – 350-acre country park, an oasis of woodland, meadow, and lakes in nearby Wokingham. Walking, paddleboarding, sailing and fishing on offer.

The Harris Garden in the University of Reading's Whiteknights Campus is famous for its cherry blossom but the garden is an oasis all year round.

EXPLORE THE TOWN CENTRE

Reading town centre is easily explored on foot. Just a few hundred metres from the station, you'll find the main shopping, dining and entertainment areas as well as Reading's Abbey Quarter.

Reading's pedestrianised Broad Street is the beating heart of the town that links everywhere together. Begin your journey at the eastern end of town with a visit to Reading Museum and fascinating Reading Abbey Quarter. Then stroll west along Broad Street for a shopping spree at John Lewis, M&S or one of top brands in the Oracle Shopping Centre or Broad Street Mall. Reading's independents, from hat shops to comic specialists and a dizzying array of small restaurants can be found in the Harris Arcade and Queen's Walk.

Discover
and fun

Broad Street and the surrounding streets are always buzzing with people but the town centre is particularly lively on event days, such as Chinese New Year and Valentine processions at the start of the year to summer street food festivals, Diwali and of course Christmas.

Why not try?

The Biscuit Factory – for films, bar and community café.

Sweeney & Todd – a Reading pie shop institution.

The Ale House – real ale in cosy corners.

Flamingos Vintage – vintage clothes by the kilo.

Blue Collar Corner – street food container village with Reading beer.

The Pantry – Relaxed café for lunch in Reading Town Hall.

Dr Marten's – the iconic British shoe shop.

Madoo deli and café – all things foodie from Italy.

Notes – renowned London-based coffee roasters and bar at Station Hill.

Siren Bar – 28 ales are always on tap from Reading's own brewery.

Shed – independent café serving up doorstep sandwiches and toasties in an old forge.

Station Hill

Between the station and the town centre, a vibrant new destination has emerged. Station Hill is a thriving hub for community, lifestyle and business. You'll find stunning new public art, cafes, restaurants and Siren Bar on the corner of Reading's new pedestrianised thoroughfare Friar's Walk.

READING'S MUSEUMS

From the story of the Norman invasion of England in 1066 to planes, animals and medicine, Reading's museums offer a fascinating visit. And, they are nearly all free.

Reading Museum

The starting point for exploring Reading Abbey Quarter, Reading Museum takes you through medieval Britain to the world's biggest biscuit factory.

Reading Museum is home to Britain's Bayeux Tapestry, the only full-scale replica of the Norman original which tells the story of William the Conqueror's invasion in 1066. Stitched 140 years ago, the 70 metre-long work is identical in nearly every detail to the Norman original.

Step into Reading's past

The Museum of English Rural Life

The MERL celebrates all things food, farming and the countryside. Very family-friendly with a lovely garden and café.

The Cole Museum of Zoology

The Cole Museum is home to thousands of specimens of great zoological significance, including taxidermy, skeletons, fossils and some superb models of extinct animals.

The Ure Museum of Greek Archaeology

Based in the University's Department of Classics, the museum boasts one of the largest collections of Greek ceramics in the UK.

The Museum of Berkshire Aviation

Located in Woodley, this museum celebrates local aviation history including a real plane to explore.

The Berkshire Medical Museum

Open two Sundays a month, the museum has a fascinating collection of artefacts and photographs relating to medicine, surgery, nursing, pharmacy and dentistry.

READING THROUGH THE AGES

Reading's story began 1,000 years ago as a Roman and Viking settlement. It has a rich medieval history and elegant Georgian and Victorian buildings alongside modern architecture befitting of a modern, thriving economy.

Reading Abbey Quarter

The heart of medieval Reading. Just 2 minutes from Reading Station but transporting you back over nine hundred years, Reading Abbey was founded by King Henry I of England in 1121. Find his burial place, see where the monks lived or visit the Abbey Gateway, the only remaining gate into the abbey complex. Free to visit and open every day.

Splendid Georgian architecture

Reading has a rich legacy of Georgian buildings from the 18th and early 19th century. Pick up a copy of the Georgian Reading self-guided walk leaflet to see for yourself. Jane Austen went to school in Reading during this period. Visit her schoolroom in the Abbey Gateway as part of an Abbey Quarter tour.

A Victorian metropolis

Reading's famous 3Bs (beer, biscuits and bulbs) were at the heart of Reading's development in the Victorian era. The wealth that these industries created can be seen in the fine buildings designed by the greats of British architecture, Alfred Waterhouse, Gilbert Scott and Sir John Soane. Oscar Wilde was the most famous inmate of Gilbert Scott's Reading Prison in the late 19th century following his famous trial.

See Explore on Foot (page 14) to get under the skin of Reading's heritage.

A FAMILY DAY OUT

Reading offers a very varied and good value day out for families, from active indoors and outdoors to wildlife, trains, museum trails and Paddington Bear.

You can get in and on the water at Lagoona Park's aqua park and two new swimming pools at Rivermead (with diving pool) and Palmer Park. Both pools also have indoor play areas for younger visitors. Paddling is the order of the day at Christchurch Meadow pool. You can do all manner of water-born activities at Dinton Pastures in nearby Wokingham.

Looking for an active experience indoors? Reading Climbing Hangar and Parthian Climbing offer climbing walls and bouldering. Or bounce at Oxygen Reading.

Wildlife and adventures outdoor can be found at Beale Wildlife Park just west of Reading or you can get to know alpaca at Bozedown Farm. Wellington Park has an animal farm and a miniature railway. Reading's Prospect Park miniature railway operates one Sunday a month.

Reading's museums (see museum pages) have family-friendly activities on Saturdays and during school holidays, from themed trails to craft and dressing up events.

The town centre is the place to be when school's out with themed trails at Easter, Summer and Halloween. And don't leave Reading without saying "Hi" to Paddington on Broad Street. His creator, Michael Bond, lived and worked in Reading.

Family fun
this way!

There are lots of indoor options with games rooms Urban Fun and Spinners offering everything from crazy golf to air hockey and bowling. Reading also has two brand new bowling centres – Hollywood Bowl and Bowl Central for dedicated bowlers.

A UNIVERSITY IN THE PARK

Reading is home to a world-class, research-intensive university which is recognised as one of the greenest in the UK. Celebrating its centenary in 2026, the University of Reading isn't just shaping the sustainability leaders of tomorrow – it offers a range of hidden gems for local people and visitors to the town to enjoy.

Looking to get outside?

Get lost in The Wilderness, visit the ducks that call Whiteknights Lake home, discover butterflies on the Meadows, and stroll through its 'secret' Harris Garden, while exploring 320 acres of Green Flag Award-winning campus.

Drop in to three on-site museums, including the Ure Museum of Greek Archaeology, Cole Museum of Zoology (where you can say hello to Norman the elephant) and the outstanding Museum of English Rural Life, at its London Road campus.

With an extensive art collection, audio tours, and public art trails – recently updated with seven globes from The World Reimagined you'll want to take a break at one of its many bars and cafes, including local favourite, Park House – all while browsing a prospectus or the activities available to you at its SportsPark and TennisPark.

It's a University 'for' Reading – where nature, culture, and community meet.

EXPLORE ON FOOT

Reading town centre is compact and easy to walk. It has grown up between the Thames and Kennet so there are lots of towpaths and riverbanks to wander and you can walk out into the surrounding countryside easily. However, with over a thousand years of history, you may well choose to explore Reading town centre – scratch the surface and you’ll unlock a multitude of stories.

Be guided

A walking tour is the best way to find your feet and learn more about Reading’s fascinating history.

- Abbey Quarter tours (including Jane Austen schoolroom) – Reading Museum. Every Saturday from April to September.
- Walk Reading offer a range of themed walks from Literary Reading to Reading the Home of Photography, as well as tours of the Silchester Roman settlement just south of Reading.
- Terry’s Reading Walkabouts offer an amazing 22 different walks from the history of biscuits in Reading to Halloween, the famous women of Reading and walks over all of Reading’s six bridges.
- Tours2Order are Reading’s Blue Badge Guide offering an introduction to Reading’s history as well as tours throughout the south-east of England.

Do it yourself

There are lots of ways to explore Reading under your own steam. Pick up a map guide:

- 4 wellbeing walking leaflets take you along the river, to Caversham and around the town centre.
- Georgian Reading is a new guide to the many amazing buildings around Reading from 1700 to 1840.
- The Thames Path along the Thames takes you east or west and you can get the train back to make it a circular day out.

St James' Way

Reading is the accredited start of one of the routes of the world-famous Camino de Santiago. The St James' Way follows the route that medieval pilgrims would have taken from Reading Abbey to the south coast, before they continued on to Santiago in north-west Spain.

Today, you can follow the 68-mile way-marked route to Southampton, collecting your pilgrim stamps along the way. Register at the Pilgrim Office in Reading Museum and take your selfie at the new 'camino' milestone marker by Reading Abbey Ruins.

READING FOR GROUPS

Reading is a great destination for groups thanks to easy access, convenient coach parking, group-friendly attractions and hotels that cater for that market.

A 2-day itinerary...

First stop is Reading Museum for a tour of Britain's Bayeux Tapestry. The Victorian replica was stitched by a group of ladies in the 1880s and is identical in almost every aspect to the original. You could also tag on a visit to Jane Austen's schoolroom and a short tour of Reading's Abbey Quarter, which includes the Abbey Ruins, the burial place of King Henry I.

Partner museum, the Museum of English Rural Life offers groups visits to its galleries dedicated to the history of food, farming and the countryside. Special mention – the Ladybird Collection of children's books.

Thames River Cruise offer private and scheduled cruises on the Thames from Reading. Book their 90 minute circular cruise to Mapledurham or the Afternoon Cream Tea cruise.

Reading is a very walkable town. Walk Reading and Terry's Reading Walkabouts offer themed walks of the town centre. Or book a Reading Museum Abbey Quarter tour.

Bill's restaurant in the town centre can cater for groups of up to 56.

The unique dining theatre, the Mill at Sonning, offers a wonderful two-course meal ahead of a performance in their intimate theatre.

Stay at...

Holiday Inn Reading South – lots of room for groups and coach parking on site. Well located for exploring the area.

Penta Hotel – central location with coach drop-off. Coach parking just 10 minutes away.

Hilton Reading – handy for M4, Shinfield Studios, Reading FC and the University.

Novotel Reading – town centre hotel close to station, shopping and entertainment. Coach drop off. Parking 10 minutes away.

Coach parking

Coach drop off/pick up on Valpy Street next to Reading Museum in the town centre.

Day and overnight coach parking at Rivermead Leisure Centre (10-minute walk).

BEYOND READING

Reading is located at the heart of beautiful Berkshire, surrounded by rolling countryside and quaint villages with plenty to interest the visitor. We're also just a short distance to Windsor, Newbury and other Berkshire towns, as well as Ascot Racecourse, Legoland and Highclere Castle.

The National Trust has three properties within easy striking distance of Reading at Basildon Park, the Vyne and Grey's Court. Head to Twyford to take a tour of the Stanlake Park Wine Estate or Henley way for the Henley Gin Distillery.

Silchester Roman City Walls and Amphitheatre and Wellington Country Park are close by to the south of Reading, while Didcot Railway Centre is a great day out for young and old just a couple of stops west up the railway line. Dinton Pastures is a 350-acre country park, situated around lakes in the heart of neighbouring Wokingham.

A leading country house hotel and venue in Berkshire

De Vere Wokefield Estate, set in 250 acres of Berkshire parkland, is a leading 376-bedroom hotel and events venue.

Whether you choose to stay at Wokefield Place, or the Mansion House, you'll find attentive service recognised by Tripadvisor and its Travellers' Choice certificate for two years running.

Outside, you'll find an 18-hole PGA-standard golf course, tennis courts, all-weather driving range and outside gym. The newly refurbished Technogym and indoor pool offers leisure guests the ideal place to relax and invigorate.

There's no shortage of dining options either, with The View serving delicious Italian-inspired cuisine, Benedict's Bar for classic bar favourites and 1560 for indulgent afternoon tea.

Located just minutes from J11 of the M4 and a short taxi ride from Reading train station, escape to the country with ease.

Gateway to London

Save money by staying in Reading and be in London in half an hour.

London is only 23 minutes on the train from Reading with GWR services. And trains are very frequent, so you'll likely not have long to wait at all, but please check your journey at GWR.com before you travel. Also, don't forget that contactless payments are now accepted from Reading and into Central London, so you can just tap on and off using a debit or credit card. You'll arrive at London Paddington Station, just a few tube stops or a 10-minute bus ride from Oxford Street and the West End.

Or you could take the Elizabeth Line stopping service direct to Central London. This is London's newest tube line and Reading is the final station to the west. You can travel direct to London's Bond Street, Tottenham Court Road, Farringdon, Liverpool Street or Canary Wharf without changing trains.

Staying in Reading will save you lots of money too and there are lots of hotels near the station such as the Novotel, Malmaison, Penta, Roseate, Ibis and others. You can be in London in no time.

GETTING HERE

Reading is one of the best-connected towns in the UK, offering lots of travel options and excellent transport links, whether you're travelling by car, bus, train, coach, bike, on foot – or even on the water!

 By train – Reading is just 23 minutes from London on GWR Mainline Services and is often the first stop on many trains coming out of London. There are so many trains you can often just turn up and jump on the first train.

Reading is also on the Elizabeth Line (part of the London transport network), making it an ideal base to visit from the Capital. London residents over 60 with a TFL Freedom Pass can travel to Reading for free on the Elizabeth Line.

Reading is linked to Gatwick, Heathrow, Southampton and Birmingham Airports by train. A new station at Green Park also links Reading to Reading Football Club's stadium and Green Park business park by train.

 By car – Reading is just two miles north of the M4 and not far from the M3, M4 and A34 so we are very well linked into the road network. There is plenty of parking in and around Reading, with many multi-storeys right in the town centre. There are also a number of park and rides dotted around the edge of Reading.

 By coach – The Rail Air Link from Heathrow is a 40-minute journey from all Heathrow terminals to Reading station. National Express serves Reading from all parts of the country.

GETTING AROUND

Reading is a very walkable town with the station in the centre and the Thames, town centre and attractions within 500m.

 By Bus – Reading's award-winning Reading Buses serve every inch of the region, so travelling by bus is a great option for those looking to reduce their carbon footprint. Reading Buses have introduced tap on / tap off so you will never be charged more than the maximum daily fare.

Reading Buses cover all destinations in Reading, including the University, Royal Berkshire Hospital and business parks, as well as all of Reading's residential areas. Bus stops can be found outside the station and on Friar Street and other town centre main arteries.

 Cycle – Nowhere in Reading town centre is more than a 30-minute cycle and with plentiful cycle parking, travelling to and around Reading by bicycle makes an ideal sustainable travel option.

 Walking – With a fully walkable town centre and miles of Thames Path to enjoy on its doorstep, Reading is a great place for walking, catering for everything from afternoon shopping strolls right through to riverside rambles.

 Taxi – You can pick up black cab taxis at both sides of Reading Station at any time of the day or night.
